Re: Proposed Pension Ordinance Amendment

June 2, 2005

On May 24, 2005 a pension ordinance amendment was introduced and is scheduled for a public hearing at the City Council meeting of June 7, 2005. The proposed pension ordinance amendment was recommended for consideration by the City Council by the Board of Trustees of the City Employees' Pension Fund.

The proposed ordinance amendment will amend one of three methods used to determine the "final pay" of a pension participant. The first of the three methods used to determine final pay is an average of the participant's last three years salary including overtime. The second method used to determine a participant's final pay is an average of participant's last year of base pay and longevity. The third method of determining final pay is to use the last thirty days base pay and longevity that is annualized. The pension ordinance amendment, which is proposed by the Pension Fund's Board of Trustees, amends only the third method of calculating final pay.

The proposed ordinance amendment limits the amount of pay that may be considered in determining final pay when using the third method that is the base pay and longevity for the last month. The last month's pay will be limited to, for pension calculation purposes only, the amount of the prior years pay increased by not more than ten percent. Should an employee receive pay increases in the final month in excess of ten percent then the salary for purposes of the pension final pay calculation under the using this method would be capped at the prior year's salary plus ten percent. The proposed ordinance amendment does not change in any way the first two methods used to determine final pay. The perceived benefit to the pension fund in implementing this amendment will be to insulate the pension fund from unexpected increases in its liabilities due to large pay increases immediately prior to retirement.

There is no cost to the City in implementing this proposed pension ordinance amendment. The amendment will only affect those participants who receive pay increases larger than ten percent within 30 days prior to retirement. This amendment has been discussed at meetings of the Employee Association.
